

Report on Awareness programme on “Why I should be vaccinated” 17.09.2021

There has been confusion and misunderstandings about vaccines. But vaccinations are an important part of the family and public health. Vaccines prevent the spread of contagious, dangerous, and deadly diseases. These include measles, polio, mumps, chickenpox, whooping cough, diphtheria, and HPV

Now Covid-19 Vaccination is the final step in our effort to get back to a more normal way of life. Evidence suggests that vaccinated people who might be infected with the coronavirus have fewer virus particles in their nose and mouth and are less likely to spread it to others.

As more people continue to receive the vaccine, we might reach herd immunity, which means the spread of the virus becomes unlikely. It's important we all receive the vaccine to help us achieve this public health goal.

But most of the students who are all from a rural background, still have hesitation in taking a vaccine against Covid-19. Misconception on Covid-19 and fear with the people led to the low vaccination in the region, hence a programme was organized on the topic "Why I Should Be Vaccinated" to remove misconception on Covid-19 vaccination and to educate the student community about the vaccination. Dr.K. Indumanth, Assistant surgeon/paediatrician, Government Hospital –Velur, Namakkal was a Special Invitee to this programme. This awareness programme was in virtual mode, in spite of her busy schedule. She accepted our invitation and gave a useful speech on the topic "Why I Should be vaccinated.. she educated the students by highlighting the importance of Covid-19 vaccination, who are all should be eligible for vaccination what are the benefits of vaccination and so on. She removed the misconception among the students on the Covid-19 vaccination.
